Admission into the Agricultural Colleges.

The selection of candidates for admission to the Agricultural Colleges at Coimbatore and Bapatla is done on the following basis :—

(1) Seats are allotted to each district in proportion to its population ;

(2) An overall communal proportion as laid down in the Service Rules is observed as far as possible ;

(3) If the requisite number of candidates is not forthcoming from any district, the balance of the number is allotted to the linguistic area to which the district belongs at the discretion of the selecting authority ;

(4) Marks are not the sole criterion ; factors other than marks taken into account are—

(a) physique necessary for field work ;
(b) participation in sports ;
(c) whether the candidate owns lands ; and
(d) performance at the interview.

Note.—(i) Generally, candidates who score very high marks are mathematics students ; but, for the agricultural course 'Natural Science' students are given some preference.

(ii) Other things being equal, preference is given to sons of practical farmers.

(iii) In the course of the selection this year, it was found that in one district, North Arcot, for the ten seats allotted, six had to be given to Brahmans due to the non-availability of applications from the other communities. Of these six, only two were Intermediate First classes while the remaining four were Second classes with less marks than some of the Brahman candidates rejected from other districts. Further, because more Brahmans were taken from this district and as the overall communal proportion had to be adhered to, other districts, some of which had a large number of applications, had to suffer by either having fewer or no Brahman seats. So, in these districts, Brahman candidates with better marks had to be rejected. Factors similar to this will explain the disparity in marks between the selected and the rejected candidates. Even in the case of Non-Brahman candidates, some with good marks had to be rejected because a fair representation had to be given for Backward communities.

The details required by the hon. Member are given in the statements below :—
